Introduction

DJMV believes that everyone, irrespective of gender, age, ethnicity or ability, has basic human rights, including access to an adequate standard of living, health and education. Women and men should have the means and freedoms to achieve their rights, including being able to choose and use technologies that assist them in leading the kind of life they value.

DJMV recognises that gender relations and inequalities are fundamental causes of poverty. Women and girls do not enjoy the same status, power or access to and control over resources as men and boys and the benefits and costs of science and technology are not equally shared by women and men.

DJMV further recognises that men and women are not themselves homogenous groups and that this disparity of status, power and access to and control over resources is further influenced by other factors such as ethnicity, age and ability.

In pursuit of its Vision and Mission, DJMV is committed to ensuring equitable access to livelihoods and educational options for all women and men, advancing gender equality and women's empowerment through all of its work including programmes, knowledge sharing, advocacy and external communications, and through its own organisational development.

Programmes

DJMV will seek to ensure the full participation and empowerment of women and men in all areas of its work by:

- Ensuring programmes and projects actively seek to include women and marginalised groups.
- Incorporating gender analysis that considers both the practical and strategic gender needs of beneficiaries into the design of programmes and projects, and acting on that analysis in programme and project plans by including relevant activities that contribute to gender equity.
- Ensuring project teams have the capacities and skills to implement these activities effectively and that project proposals include adequate financial resources for activities, monitoring and any necessary capacity building on gender.
- Using gender disaggregated indicators for programme and project monitoring, and evaluating gender outcomes in all projects.
- Documenting the gender analysis and outcomes of DJMV NGO's programmes and projects.
